STATEMENT OF COMMITMENT

Human rights are the foundation for dignity, stability and fair progress. They hold societies together: protecting people from abuse, ensuring inclusion, and giving meaning to justice and equality in everyday life.

Today, that foundation is under unprecedented strain, as violations continue with impunity, violence is becoming normalized, and civic space is shrinking.

Stronger collective action is needed.

In the lead up to the 80th anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Right on 10 December 2028, the Global Alliance for Human Rights will mobilize actors from all sectors, regions and generations to meet this moment.

We will join efforts to imagine and build a world where human rights are lived locally; understood and trusted; defended in times of risk; embedded in solutions to global challenges; and supported by resilient institutions.

Inspired by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, and with a shared determination to achieve progress by 10 December 2028, we commit to:

- Championing human rights publicly.
- Engaging in dialogue across regions, sectors and generations.
- Taking action through pledges and catalytic initiatives under the Global Alliance strategic pathways - Human Rights at Home, Human Rights in Action, Human Rights in Mind, and Human Rights for the Future.
- Sharing progress on actions taken.

We will contribute to the Global Alliance through one or more of the following:

- Political commitment: Public endorsement at the highest levels and integrating human rights into leadership discussions and decision-making.
- Advocacy and outreach: Mobilizing networks, promoting catalytic initiatives, and hosting events.
- In-kind contribution: Providing technical expertise, secondments, research, data and digital solutions.
- Financial contribution: Funding the Global Alliance and/or its catalytic initiatives.
